PRESS REVIEWS

"Hollywood in the 30s is a perfectly designed and illustrative book that convinces on all counts with its aesthetics and content. Or better yet: it is as beautiful as Garbo, as elegant as Fred Astaire and as quirky as the Marx Brothers. Surely this era has never been portrayed so nimbly, so lively, so witty, but most of all, so genuinely."

- Deutschlandradio Kultur radio, December 8, 2010

"Hollywood has for so long been a place for which we have yearned.

Reading this book will culminate in doubling that longing."

- Die Welt newspaper, October 2010

"Wonderful drawings in the vein of vintage 1930s movie posters - pure glamor."

- Deutschlandfunk radio, October 2010

"This book is dedicated to Hollywood's legendary appeal. Accordingly cased in glamorous golden binding, it uniquely documents the most sensational moments of the Hollywood dream factory ... Hollywood's golden era is found right in this book."

- television 3sat bookmark, October 2010

"This beauty comes all in gold. Rightly so, since Robert Nippoldt's enticing book pairs graphics and glamor to make a veritable work of book art. He gets our standing ovations!"

- Freundin Donna magazine, October 2010

"It is Kothenschulte's portrayals of the most important along with some surprising yet rather unknown protagonists of old-time Hollywood that make this book so instructive - and Nippoldt's illustrations that make it so worth looking at ... It is simply eye candy."

- Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung newspaper, October 2010
